The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claim 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to use the invention.

There are many factors to be considered when determining whether there is sufficient evidence to support a determination that a disclosure does not satisfy the enablement requirement and whether any necessary experimentation is "undue". These factors include 1) the breadth of the claims, 2) the nature of the invention, 3) the state of the prior art, 4) the level of one of ordinary skill, 5) the level of predictability in the art, 6) the amount of direction provided by the inventor, 7) the existence of working examples, and 8) the quantity of experimentation needed to make or use the invention based on the content of the disclosure. In re Wands, 858 F.2d 731, 737, 8 USPQ2d 1400, 1404 (Fed. Cir. 1988).

The nature of the invention: The nature of the invention is the intended use of a pyrazole product of formula (I).

The state of the prior art and predictability: The intended uses recited in claim 11 require a certain outcome. There is no absolute predictability even in view of the seemingly high level of skill in the art. It is noted that the pharmaceutical art is unpredictable, requiring each intended use to be individually assessed for an expected outcome. In re Fisher, 427 F. 2d 833, 166 USPQ 18 (CCPA 1970) indicates that the more unpredictable an area is, the more specific enablement is necessary in order to satisfy the statute. In the instant case, the instantly claimed invention is highly unpredictable since one skilled in the art would not recognize the expected outcomes of so many unrelated diseases or disorders. No class of compounds or single compound has been found effective in treating, preventing, ameliorating such a myriad of unrelated diseases or disorders. The diseases or disorders listed in claim 11 may not be subject to prophylaxis (prevention) or amelioration (improvement). The intended use may be merely treatable for a certain aspect of diseases or disorders. For example, cancer, Alzheimer's, infertility, baldness.

Guidance and working examples: There is no demonstration of a correlation between the compound and the diseases or disorders. Many of the intended diseases or disorders named are in fact a CLASS of disorders or diseases. No single compound or class of compounds is known to treat all the sub-categories of a particular type of disease or disorder. By way of example, applicants name diseases or disorders associated with ---inflammatory reactions, abnormal angiogenesis affecting body tissue, cancer, and degenerative changes within the walls of blood vessels---.

Deletion of the intended uses would overcome this rejection.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The undefined point of attachment for substituent R^2 is indefinite. It is not clear whether R^2 is intended to attach to one of the ring nitrogens, or, whether R^2 also attaches to the Q, R^1 nor R^3 substituents. Correction and/or clarification is required.

Claims 2-10 are objected to as depending from a rejected base claim, claim 1, but would be allowable pending resolution of the next above rejection.

No claim is allowed.
